The Daily Gazetteer.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21. 1740. N°. 1560.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Rome, June 11. N. S.

LAST Week there was a mighty Stir in the Conclave. The Cardinals Delci and Passionei being enter'd upon the List for the Pontificate, the former had no less than 26 Voices; but the Factions of the Cardinals Albani and Acquaviva thwarted his Election by proposing Cardinal Passionei. Cardinal Gotti has also appear'd in upon the List, who 'tis said is supported by the Spaniards, and Cardinal Albani seems to espouse his Interest, but the French and Germans seem united to oppose it: On the other Hand, the Neapolitans would fain have a Pope of their own Nation. In short, never was a Conclave more embroil'd or divided. Cardinal Porzia dy'd last Night, after having sent his Auditor to bid Adieu to the Sacred College, and to beg Pardon for all past Errors; and if Cardinal Orsi, who continues very dangerously ill, should die too, he will be the fourth that is departed from the Conclave into the other World.

Berlin, June 21. N. S. This Day his Majesty din'd in Publick with the Queen Regent and the Queen Dowager, with whom he generally dines when he comes from Charlottembourg. The King has suppress'd the Custom of registering Infants as soon as they are born, for making them serve in the Army when they arrive at a proper Age, and has confirm'd all the Privileges granted by his Predecessors to the French Refugees that are settled in the Dominions of Brandenbourg. His Majesty, in order to form a Guard for the Queen among the Soldiery, has more Regard to the good Air of the Men than their Stature, and has order'd that no Recruits shall be admitted for the future who are above 5 Foot 10 Inches, and that no Men of such Stature shall have more than 80 or 100 Crowns List-money. The King has augmented the Salaries of his Ministers in Foreign Courts, to enable them to appear in a Manner suitable to their Dignity. In short, in short, by all the Regulations which the King is making, that he intends to re-place Things upon the Footing they were in the Reign of the late King his Grandfather. His Majesty has not only made a considerable Addition to the Sum allow'd for the Table of his Mother the Queen Dowager, but has also doubled the Jointure settled on her by the late King his Father. 'Tis believed that the King will go next Month to Koningsberg, to be crown'd, and that after his Return hither from thence, he will in August next to Cleves, to receive the Homage of his Subjects of that Duchy. The Order of Gentilhomme, being very common, the King has establish'd another, the Badge of which is a Golden Cross, with this Inscription For Merit, with a Crown over it, and in the Letter F, which is the first of his Majesty's Name.

The King of Prussia's Circular Letter to the several Regencies of his Dominions, notifying the Death of his late Majesty.

FREDERIC, King of Prussia, &c.

WHEREAS it pleased God, whose Views and Will are unchangeable, to call the King our dear Father of Glorious Memory Yesterday out of this World, and to transplant him into a happy Eternity, we would not delay to acquaint you of this Event, which is such a sensible Grief to us; as well as to notify to you that upon this Occasion we have taken Possession of the Government of our Royal, Electoral, and other Dominions; not doubting but you and all our other dear and faithful Subjects will be extremely concern'd at this melancholy Loss, and that you will have for us, who are now your Sovereign Lord and King, the same Fidelity, Submission, and Attachment, as we are willing to think you had for his late Majesty, our dear Father. For our Part, in order to answer such a Disposition, we shall take no other Care, nor will any Thing be more agreeable to us, than to provide for the Welfare of the Dominions and Subjects of your and other Jurisdictions, and to make every one content and happy. And tho' we heartily thank you for the faithful Services which you have perform'd to his late Majesty, our Dear Father, yet 'tis not our Intention that you should hereafter endeavour to enrich us by oppressing our poor Subjects; but you shall be oblig'd, on the contrary, by virtue of these Presents, to take as much Care of the Interests of the Country as of our own, forasmuch as we make no Distinction between the one and the other.

'Moreover, we command you to cause the Demise of his late Majesty, our Dear Father, to be notify'd from the Pulpit to the People all over the Country, agreeable to the Form hereunto annexed, and to cause the usual Prayers to be put up for us and our Royal Family, according to the Form which we herewith send you. You will at the same Time take care, that the Bells of all the Churches be toll'd, in all the Towns and Villages, from twelve at Noon till one, for the Space of Six Weeks, and that no Organs be play'd either in the Churches or elsewhere, till we give Orders for it. In the Reports which you shall make to us, and in the Writs of the Chancery, and of the Councils of War, and of the Domains of this Government, you will always call us Frederic King of Prussia, and give us all the Titles which were borne by his late Majesty, our Dear Father.

'You will continue to make use of the Seals which you have used hitherto, till you receive others: And it is our Pleasure that you continue to exercise the Functions of your Offices, with all the Zeal, Fidelity, Diligence and Submission to us and our Royal Family, which your Conscience shall dictate to you, and which your Power will admit of, by employing yourselves without ceasing to avert every Thing that may be contrary thereunto: And in so doing you will answer the Confidence which we repose in you.

Berlin, June 1, 1740. FREDERIC.

'We have fix'd on the 4th of July next for that Ceremony in the Capital Cities of our Dominions, to the Intent that a Funeral Procession may be there made, at which all that can shall be present in black Cloaks and Habits, with the same Ceremonies as were practis'd in the Year aforesaid.
